For the iPAQ Desktop Personal Computer, see iPAQ desktop computer. For the NASA center, see Infrared Processing and Analysis Center. Since HewlettPackard s acquisition of Compaq, the product has been marketed by HP. The devices use a Windows Mobile interface. In addition to this, there are several Linux distributions that will also operate on some of these devices. Later versions of iPAQs have most of these features integrated into the base device itself, some including GPRS mobiletelephony simcard slot and radio. A substantial number of current and past devices are outsourced from Taiwanese HTC corporation. With the acquisition of Compaq by HewlettPackard, HP discontinued the Jornada line of Microsoft Windows powered Pocket PCs, moving development and marketing of Pocket PCs to the iPAQ line. It had a fourbit grayscale display, running on Pocket PC 2000. The H3100 was succeeded by the similarlydesigned H3600. Changes included a colour display and a chrome coloured directional pad compared to the monochrome display and gunmetal grey dpad of its predecessor. The H3600 was succeeded by the H3800 and H3900, which retained the same form factor, but had a different button layout. They were sold preinstalled with the Windows Mobile for Pocket PC 2003 Operating System. The h63xx series of iPAQs running the Phone Edition of Windows Mobile 2003, the hx47xx series and the rz17xx series, both running the Second Edition of Windows Mobile 2003 were introduced in August 2004. These devices were aimed at consumers, rather than the traditional corporate audience. Emphasis was placed on media features, like NEVO TV Remote and Mobile Media. They ran on Windows Mobile 2003SE. It was replaced a year later by the hw6900 series, running on Windows Mobile 5. Both series of iPAQs work on the Windows Mobile 5 Operating System WM5, as do the hx2000 and hw6900 series.<http://www.gymostrov.cz/gymostrov/userfiles/casio-calculator-fx-83gt-plus-manual.xml>

The first HP Windows Mobile 6 device, the iPAQ 500 Series Voice Messenger, with the Windows Mobile 6 Standard Operating System WM6, and numeric pad, was released in the same year. The models announced were the 100 Series Classic Handheld, the 200 Series Enterprise Handheld, the 300 Series Travel Companion, the 600 Series Business Navigator and the 900 Series Business Messenger. The 100 and 200 Series are regular touchscreen PDAs without phone functionality running WM6. The 300 Series Travel Companion is not a PDA; marketed as a Personal Navigation Device, it is a handheld GPS unit operating on the Windows CE 5.0 core Operating System with a custom user interface. The 600 and 900 series are phones with integrated GPS and 3G capabilities, running the WM6 Professional. The 600 series possesses a numeric pad and the 900 series features a full QWERTY keyboard. HP continues to advertise the 111 series and the Glisten on its website, however. As such, the status and fate of the iPAQ line is unclear. It stopped being actively maintained in 2007. Support for handwriting recognition, onscreen keyboard, bluetooth, IrDA and add-on hardware such as keyboards are standard in both environments. Upgrades could be purchased from HP. Windows Mobile 2003 could be installed on the H3950, H3970, h5450 and possibly other models of the H3xxx series with sufficient ROM capacity. These include Windows Mobile 6.0, 6.1 and 6.5. Compaq presumably upgraded the battery to cope with the faster CPUs power requirements. Retrieved February 13, 2013. Retrieved 13 February 2013. I did alot of searching and turns out it is a Compaq iPAQ h3950 Pocket PC. It has the default operating system and applications on it. However, I cant seem to get it to use the internet. Does it have wifi capability to start with. Mine says it has several networking adapters installed on it, but I have no idea on how to go about using them. I am not the greatest with networking stuff. The one time I really tried to connect it asked for dialup information! I also did not get the install CD for the dock cable but I have found the manual archived online. What can I do with this Pocket PC specifically. I have heard rumors that I can use it as a phone or as a GPS device. However, it is an HP product. I know HP bought out Compaq but will it be compatible. It says for h3900 models on the front.

Anyways, should I have gotten the PC card expander instead. I have looked around and seen all of these great devices that attach to either CF or PC but not both. What I plan on using it for is for homework and notes in college. Ive already gotten really adept at using the handwriting for the thing so it shouldnt be a problem. Id really like to use the internet on it though. New and refurbished models available on many lines including 3630, 3870, 3950, 3970, 5450, 5550, 2210, 1940, 4150, 1710, 6340. instructions, first removing the older versionSmartST Desktop will not sync to the Ipaq 3955. I am using the latest version of Active sync 4.2I use the Ipaq 3850 with also Active Sync 4.2. I do get some new folders on my Ipaq, such as POIs but they are empty. I have asked for a possible solution from Navman 7 aug but no reply until now. If you found the solution please let me know.To hard reset my Ipaq, H3955If a hard reset is sucessfull The SmartSt 2005 installed sucessfully after the reset. Conclusion a hard reset is a must !!!It worked for me as well, although the ipaq now does not recognize my navman gps 3450, expansion pack.I could return it to the UK and get my money back.
That was sep 01.

But I still got the software on my PC so tried it anyway. It worked, but with the cds gone, no activation code, no maps. Phone the navmanonlinestore again, they returned my software package.
System works fine, but not with my navman sleeve.I hope dont have to buy another gps mouse just to get my signals.I have received a reply from Navman, with the location of the driver self service part of the navman site article 124. After some small problems the ipaq now recognizes the gps, even picks the right com port and baud rate. After two months the system works completely as it should, now I can find my way around europe again.Good luckIm running an iPAQ 3950 with a Navman sleeve GPS and Im considering a mapping upgrade. Rgds. CormacIm living in the Netherlands, havent been in Ireland lately in fact never. But found this. Thats a guy who is pretty serious it does NOT work in Northern Ireland, but found not much beside this. Im happy with the latest version, a lot of new roads are mentioned compared to the V1.91 I was running before this in the Netherlands. Good luck. EricThanks for that obviously hes not impressed. Ive done some research since my initial post, and can advise the following. The maps in SmartST 2005 are by TeleAtlas. Deciphering this, my interpretation is; decent coverage in Dublin and Belfast, and something approaching sodall for the remainder of the country. This concurs with the experience of e.g. Tom Tom owners here Tom Tom uses the TeleAtlas maps too. Reliable reports are that some of the map firms are mapping Ireland at present indeed Ive seen evidence of this myself. Not sure who it is, or when well see the results, but to quote the reviewer you cited; in car navigation kit in Ireland is about as useful as a chocalate fireguard at present. Ill stick with my own homebrew maps for now.
